Ferro

Victims are often handcuffed with ferro during interrogations. These 'special' iron handcuffs have bolts that can be screwed from underneath to tighten them, which creates severe pain and stops the blood flow. Depending on the replies given to the questions of the interrogator, the ferro are tightened or loosened.

Toilet breaks

Inmates can generally go out for toilet breaks once or twice a day to urinate and defecate, often in open spaces covered with human waste while guarded at gunpoint. Former detainees reported being forced to release themselves under extreme time pressure and in humiliating ways.
